

Armed assaults on organisations and their people are not necessarily on-site. Employees may be impacted travelling on business and attending off-site meetings. Driven by unpredictable motivations, armed assaults may be targeted at unpredictable locations from violence in the workplace perpetrated by disgruntled employees, to siege and hostage situations to active and indiscriminate shooters in crowded public areas creating maximum panic and disruption.

AIG's Armed Assault provides pre-emptive employee training and support to ensure individuals and organisations are well prepared prior to any event. It also provides broad insurance protection and world class crisis and security response during and after an event to mitigate its impact and help the business and its people recover from the devastating effects.
